

Brian Metz is the Vice President of Business Development at AgileThought and is responsible for implementing strategies to generate revenue, drive growth, and build long-term client relationships. He has over thirty years of experience in various technical and leadership roles, including an extensive background in software and systems design and development, computer and network design, implementation and support, business development, training, and quality control.

Brian has held various industry-related positions ranging from software/systems engineer to IT consultant. He founded his own IT consulting firm that merged with TransWorld Diversified Services, where he served as Senior Vice President and CIO. He has also served in a leadership role for several Fortune 500 companies, including AT&T, Raymond James Financial, and Honeywell. He received his Bachelor of Science Degree in Electrical/Computer Engineering from the University of South Carolina and a Master's Degree in Business Administration from the University of Tampa.

With technology constantly evolving and the surge of mobile devices and platforms, Brian points out that our goal is to always be at the forefront in providing comprehensive and practical enterprise software solutions. He understands the key importance of building collaborative client partnerships and looks for opportunities that provide true business value to our customers.
